PARTY'S OVER

U. OF I. DETHRONED AS NATION'S TOP PARTY SCHOOL

By Leonor Vivanco | CHICAGO TRIBUNE

In the Big Ten Conference, where college rivalries are huge, the University of Illinois just lost a title.

U. of I. was dethroned as the top party school in the Princeton Review's annual list of college rankings. The new winner in that category is the University of Wisconsin at Madison, according to the college guide released Monday. University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign claims third place. Rounding out the top five are West Virginia University (No. 2), Lehigh University in Pennsylvania (No. 4) and Bucknell University in Pennsylvania (No. 5).

The rankings are based on a survey of 143,000 students at 381 top colleges and are published in the 2017 edition of the "Best Colleges" guidebook, on sale Tuesday. Students rate their schools on a number of topics ranging from financial aid and best campus food to level of happiness and most beautiful campus. The Princeton Review is not affiliated with Princeton University.

The Princeton Review included feedback from unnamed students who commented on the social scene at the University of Illinois, which has nearly 33,000 undergraduates enrolled. It quoted one student as saying, "The bars in downtown Champaign are great and super relaxed, plus there is an awesome music scene that most people don't expect from a college town."

Students surveyed pointed out the "19-year-old bar age" and the large Greek system, but they also said the large variety of social opportunities means "there's also tons to do beyond the bars," according to the guidebook.

The third-place ranking riled U. of I. officials, as the No. 1 spot did last year.

"Whatever ranking they attach to us is insulting to our students, who are some of the brightest, most hard-working scholars anywhere," said Robin Kaler, a university spokeswoman. "This pseudo ranking is nothing more than a promotion for Princeton Review."

On the other side of the spectrum is the "stone-cold sober school," a title that belongs to Brigham Young University in Utah.

RedEye

Are you a Chicago-based entrepreneur between the ages of 21-40? Do you have a business idea, prototype or half-baked strategy that you need help with? Do you watch ABC's "Shark Tank" and think to yourself, "Wow, I am a lot smarter than these people?"

Have we got the contest for you: the RedEye Big Idea Awards.

On Oct. 13 at Ravenswood Event Center, we'll crown winners with new business ideas in four categories: food and drink; art and design; technology; and community development and civic involvement.

Winners receive prizes including ads in RedEye's print edition and a one-year small business membership to the Chicagoland Chamber of Commerce plus a gift certificate to apply toward registration at Chamber events, to help get your idea to that next level.

And you'll do a victory tour onstage at the Big Idea Awards, which drew nearly 350 guests last year.

We have created this process to turn your big idea into a reality. So don't wait. Go to redyechicago.com/bigidea to enter. Submissions will be accepted until 11:59 p.m. CT on Sept. 11.

On Sept. 19, finalists will officially be announced to the public. If you're a finalist, you'll be headed to the finals at Ravenswood Event Center to pitch your big idea to the public (in person) with one goal in mind: Tally the most votes in your category to be named a Big Idea winner. Votes will be cast live by attendees at the event.

The event will feature meet-and-greets with each finalist, beverages, appetizers and more.

Submit your idea to us today. Who knows? In less than two months, you could be hoisting the trophy onstage at the Big Idea Awards.

Full rules can be found at redyechicago.com/bigidea. (Don't be lazy, actually read them. They have lots of important info you need to know.)

WHAT'S IN A COLLEGE FOOTBALL TEAM SLOGAN?

By Paul M. Banks | FOR REDEYE

"Clear Eyes, Full Hearts, Can't Lose!" is one of the greatest motivational mantras ever. Unfortunately, it belongs to a fictional team on "Friday Night Lights," a TV series that went off the air in 2011. However, the saying conveys how seriously football teams take sloganeering. While some slogans can be moving and inspirational, others might be best described by Morgan Freeman's character in "The Lego Movie": "I know that sounds like a cat poster." As the college football season begins this weekend, RedEye surveyed Midwestern teams on all the phrases fit to hashtag. I offered my own, too. PAUL M. BANKS IS A REDEYE CONTRIBUTOR. @PAULMBANKS

ILLINOIS

Sloganeering was comically disastrous under previous coach Tim Beckman, with both W.I.N.T. (Whatever Is Necessary Today) and O.S.K.E.E. not well received. Athletic director Josh Whitman fixed all that when, after just days on the job, he made a splash hire in former Bears coach Lovie Smith.

2016 slogan: Whitman's #WeWillWin is the mantra of every Illinois athletics program.

The quotes: "I feel like if you need a slogan to get going, then you might not want to do it," quarterback Wes Lunt said.

"I don't get into that an awful lot. That's kind of low on the totem pole for us right now," Smith said.

Brutally honest slogan: "Moving in the right direction, but give us time to clean up the mess we inherited."

INDIANA

IU featured two mantras last season: "Lock in" and "Out the gate." Just as you would with a presidential campaign, you must keep your themes short and sweet.

2016 slogans: #RepIN, #RaiseTheFlag

The quote: "We have that attacking mindset, because we work out with Marines and they're all about attacking," said Dan Feeney, a Hoosiers offensive guard and Orland Park native.

Brutally honest slogan: "Trying to keep you occupied until basketball season starts."

MICHIGAN STATE

As slogan-intensive a program as you'll find, recent years have included "P4RB: Prepare for Rose Bowl," "Chase it" and "Reach Higher."

2016 slogan: #Back2Back

The quote: "There's only one thing that you can do, and that's go back to back. Because we've won two [of the past three Big Ten titles]," coach Mark Dantonio said.

Brutally honest slogan: "Maybe we'll become so successful that we'll one day overcome our Michigan inferiority complex."

MINNESOTA

The school's "Ski-U-Mah" is one of the more unique traditional battle cries in college sports.

GETTY IMAGES FILE

2016 slogan: #BrickByBrick, which was laid by former coach Jerry Kill.

The quote: “A lot of times slogans, they all of a sudden wear off. I want kids playing because they love their teammates and the game of football,” coach Tracy Claeys said. “That’s more powerful than any slogan you can throw out there.”

Brutally honest slogan: “Gophers live in the ground, and we make our living via the ground game. Synergy!”

NORTHWESTERN

Gary Barnett laid the foundation for the program’s recent success, teaching the Wildcats to finally “Expect Victory” after decades of extreme futility.

2016 slogan: W.I.N., aka #WhatsImportantNow

The quote: “We’ve kind of gone through some different things, but the consistent one in our program now is W.I.N. It’s about making choices and decisions,” coach Pat Fitzgerald said.

Brutally honest slogan: “Hoping to get more purple than [insert Big Ten opponent’s color here] in the stadium on game days.”

NOTRE DAME

No team’s history is more rich in memorable, iconic slogans than the Fighting Irish’s. Even non-football fans have heard “Win one for the Gipper” and have seen the “Play Like a Champion Today” sign.

2016 slogan: #LeadersEatLast is a motto emblazoned on T-shirts some players are wearing this season.

The quote: “You really can’t be a leader if you’re not picking up from behind,” coach Brian Kelly said. “You’ve got to be that guy that picks up that piece of paper and puts it in the barrel in the locker room. You’ve got to be the last one out, first one in.”

Brutally honest slogan: “Not where we were in the early ‘90s, but we’ve taken the right measures to get back there.”

PURDUE

Boilermaker football nicknamed itself “the cradle of quarterbacks” because of all the big-name signal callers who have played at Purdue. Some, such as Drew Brees and Kyle Orton, played in a system fondly referred to as “basketball on grass.”

2016 slogan: #FocusFightFinish

The quote: “I feel like slogans [are] just something for the media, I guess,” receiver DeAngelo Yancey said.

Brutally honest slogan: “We know you have very low expectations, so any success is a pleasant surprise.”

FX AND THE TERRIBLE, HORRIBLE, NO GOOD, VERY BAD PEOPLE

By Aly Morris | REDEYE

Our favorite trainwreck of a foursome returns Wednesday to slosh through love, life and trash juice on FX's "You're the Worst." Season 2 left us with an unplanned pregnancy, an "I love you, too," and an adorably perfect blossoming romance. "Orange Is the New Black's" Samira Wiley (you know her as Poussey Washington) joins the already-dynamic cast for its third season—and probable final Sunday Funday—to help Gretchen deal with her clinical depression. To help you prepare, we look back at the lows and lower-than-lows of Jimmy, Gretchen, Lindsay and Edgar's past two seasons—with a few episode highlights to remind you just how much of a beautiful disaster the first 23 episodes were. And no, you can't have a cigarette. They're pretty expensive. @ALYSONMORRIS | ALYSONMORRIS@REDEYECHICAGO.COM

MORE TO LOVE

When you think of edgy TV shows, maybe you think of HBO, but FX is just as deserving of your attention—maybe more. The network was nominated for 56 Emmys this year (a record for basic cable) and is doing some of the most interesting work on television. They're also premiering two new shows this fall, so jump on the bandwagon early.

—LAUREN CHIVAL, REDEYE

'Atlanta' Tuesday, Sept. 6, 9 p.m.
Created by and starring Donald Glover (aka Childish Gambino), the semi-autobiographical series centers on two cousins working in the Atlanta music scene. Less about "trying to make it" and more about relationship dynamics, the series is a comedy-drama, so prepare yourself for laughing and crying.

'Better Things' Thursday, Sept. 8, 9 p.m.
Created by Louis C.K. and Pamela Adlon, this series kind of seems like the female "Louie." It's based on Adlon's life, and she stars as an actress and divorced mom of three daughters. Even if you've never asked your mom to buy you organic weed, it still looks like it could be darkly relatable.

If you were the kind of weirdo who would bet on this type of thing, you'd almost certainly place money on the fact that I'd include my hometown's best band (sorry, Mustard Plug) playing my favorite bar, the Gman Tavern. With the Lakeview drinking establishment's renovated back room, it's now a really great place to see a show. All that aside, I'm actually picking this show on the strength of how much I enjoy the psych-minded garage rock of the Grand Rapids, Mich., trio's most recent LP, "Baptistina." You'll have fun. Pineapple, grapefruit

JOSEPH HERNANDEZ/TRIBUNEREFRESHING AND EASY TO MAKE AT HOME, AGUA FRESCA
TAKES OFF IN CHICAGO

By Joseph Hernandez | CHICAGO TRIBUNE

“Agua fresca.” Even saying it conjures visions of sandy vistas, straw hats blocking out tropical sun and technicolor Collins glasses sweating beads of condensation.

The name is translated as “fresh water,” but the drink is so much more than simple H₂O. The basic formula: Use water as your base and add pureed fruit, sugar and a hit of citrus. It’s a forgiving recipe and always a refreshing one.

Typical aguas frescas feature melon, a no-brainer for its high water content and sweetness. But where’s the fun in typical? To the right, find a couple of more exciting recipes—still easy to make and also easily upgraded with a nip or two of booze, if you’re feeling it.

And if you’d rather leave the mixing to the pros, you’re in luck. Chicago bartenders are all over the agua fresca this summer, making interesting takes with celery, lemongrass and more.

Pineapple, grapefruit and cilantro agua fresca

Inspired by pineapple as a substitute for melon, I created this bright and tropical agua fresca, and it’s now one of my favorites to make—it’s sweet but not too sugary, the pineapple balanced by herbaceous cilantro and zingy grapefruit. Add 2 ounces of your favorite tequila blanca to your glass to net yourself a sprightly Paloma-like cocktail.

Makes: 1 quart (about 4 drinks)

1 whole pineapple, cored and sliced into chunks
Leaves from 5 stalks of cilantro (about ½ cup)
 Juice of 1 grapefruit
4 cups water
 Agave nectar, to taste

In a blender, combine all ingredients except agave and pulse until well-blended. With a fine mesh strainer (or strainer lined with cheesecloth), strain mixture into a pitcher or punch bowl. (Blending and straining can be done in two batches.) While I find the juice pleasantly balanced in sweetness, taste the agua fresca, and add agave if you want it a little sweeter. Pour over ice.

Cucumber-celery
agua fresca

Cucumber and celery also boast high water content, making them ideal candidates for agua fresca. This recipe, created by Kim Hrejsa, beverage director at The Vig (1527 N. Wells St. 312-982-2186), can easily morph into an alcoholic punch for a party. Hrejsa suggests adding 12 ounces of gin and 8 ounces of elderflower liqueur to each batch: “You’ll thank me!”

Makes: 1 quart (about 4 drinks)

½ pound cucumber, peel on
½ pound celery
½ cup agave
1 cup packed mint leaves
½ cup freshly squeezed lime juice
3 cups water

Add all ingredients to blender; blend until smooth. Pour mixture through a fine mesh strainer into a pitcher or punch bowl, pushing down on mix to extract every last bit of liquid. Add ice and stir.

AGUA FRESCA
AROUND TOWN

These Chicago spots play with the straightforward agua fresca formula to develop some must-try versions.

Watermelon Basil Daisy at Wyler Road (3581 W. Belden Ave. 773-661-0675): This Logan Square sandwich spot and bar has brought back its popular Watermelon Basil Daisy, available on draft until mid-September. Watermelon, lime and mint are mixed with high-quality Pierre Ferrand dry orange curacao and tequila. It’s a low-key drink for low-key weekends.

Celery Citrus Agua Fresca at Ruxbin (851 N. Ashland Ave. 312-624-8509): Sourcing ingredients from its rooftop garden, Ruxbin bartenders improvise agua fresca based on what’s fresh that day. It always starts with celery and a blend of lemon and limes; from there, rooftop-grown herbs and flowers add aromatic notes to a non-alcoholic, slightly vegetal sipper that evokes the height of the season. Because Ruxbin is BYO, adding a splash of something-something wouldn’t be uncalled for.

The Last Hoorah at CH Distillery (564 W. Randolph St. 312-707-8780): After collaborating over the summer at Green City Market BBQ, Nomad Food Company and CH Distillery came together on this agua fresca to mark the end of the season—Nomad developed the recipe, and CH put it on the menu. The drink features white nectarine puree as the fresh base, while CH’s Key Gin (made with Key limes, white pepper and lavender) and lemongrass contribute citrusy zing. Honey from Ellis Farm rounds things out with its soft sweetness.

Melon Farm Cocktail at JW Marriott (151 W. Adams St. 312-660-8200): Chef Michael Reich’s end-of-summer menu takes advantage of the season’s fleeting flavors, and this cocktail is no exception. Two of summer’s iconic fruits (watermelon and peach) make their way into this refreshing sipper, which sees watermelon and lemon juices shaken with Lillet Rose, Tanqueray 10 and a soft peach liqueur.

Daily aguas frescas at Cruz Blanca (904 W. Randolph St. 312-733-1975): Rick Bayless’ West Loop taco temple offers rotating selections of agua fresca, with recent flavors including the Jamaica (a blend of hibiscus tea and lemongrass), cucumber-lime-mint and yellow watermelon-lemon. Wanna live a little? Turn your fresca into a shandy with one of Cruz Blanca’s house-brewed beers, like the Smoke Alley, the taqueria’s signature dry-hopped, smoke wheat ale.

Summer Breeze Cooler at Nosh & Booze (838 W. Randolph St. 312-733-6090): At this West Loop pop-up, beverage director Jon Ruiz’s drink list is rife with low-key cocktails meant for whiling away an afternoon over snacks and good conversation. The Summer Breeze Cooler, as easygoing as its name implies, is a straightforward mix of cucumber water and Broker’s gin, with lime, mint and lemon adding some lift.

Chicago Podcast Festival set to debut in November

By Nina Metz | CHICAGO TRIBUNE

The first ever Chicago Podcast Festival, featuring some 30 comedy and storytelling podcasts, is slated for Nov. 17-19. Live shows will be recorded at Steppenwolf's new 1700 Theatre, The Promontory, Schubas Tavern and The Athenaeum Theatre's main stage. The lineup will feature live recordings of the following podcasts and others; for more info, go to chicagopodcastfestival.org.

Song Exploder: Where musicians take apart their songs and, piece by piece, tell the story of how they were made.

Filmspotting: A weekly podcast and WBEZ radio show about the latest in movies.

Hello from The Magic Tavern: Created in Chicago, this podcast is about a guy who falls through a magical portal into a magical world.

Kevin McDonald's Kevin McDonald Show: McDonald (from the sketch comedy show "The Kids in the Hall") hosts this variety hour, featuring his famous friends, musical acts, new sketches and more.

My Favorite Murder: Karen Kilgariff and Georgia Hardstark talk about their favorite tales of murder and hear hometown crime stories.

Improv Nerd: Jimmy Carrane, a longtime improv teacher and former host on WBEZ, interviews big names in comedy about their careers and improvises a short scene with them.

Shannon Cason's Homemade Stories: Cason is a regular on The Moth and Snap Judgement on NPR.

It's All True: The podcast asks people in comedy, writing, performance and music to tell one funny, true story. Hosted by comedian Tim Barnes.

The Book of Ye: Comedians Rob Haze and Chris Daniels explore the cultural significance and artistic legacy of Kanye West.

Open Ended, Roboism, Black Girl in Om: Open Ended is a podcast about the people in the tech industry, Roboism is a feminist-minded show about robots and Black Girl in Om promotes wellness and inner beauty for women of color.

"You had me laughing so hard while applying eyeliner this morning that I looked a lot like Alice Cooper... well worth having to redo my makeup. Thank you guys for starting my day."

WEIRD LINEUP, BUT WHATEVER...

The cast of the upcoming 23rd season of "Dancing with the Stars" is set to include a bemusing collection of celebrities such as Amber Rose, Ryan Lochte and former Texas governor Rick Perry. Olympic gymnast Laurie Hernandez, former rapper Vanilla Ice and actor Jake T. Austin are also on the roster, which you can see in full at abc.com. The show's first episode will air Sept. 12. Our bets are on Perry for the win, obviously.

1. Maureen McCormick and Artem Chigvintsev 2. Calvin Johnson Jr. and Unday Arnold 3. Terra Jolé and Sasha Farber 4. Kenneth "Babyface" Edmonds and Allison Holker 5. Amber Rose and Maksim Chmerkovskiy 6. Jake T. Austin and Jenna Johnson 7. Marlie Herrer and Derek Hough 8. Rick Perry and Emma Slater NOT PICTURED: Laurie Hernandez and Val Chmerkovskiy, Ryan Lochte and Cheryl Burke, Vanilla Ice and Witney Carson, James Hinchcliffe and Sharna Burgess, Jana Kramer and Gleb Savchenko

BARB'S BACK

Shannon Purser, who played fan favorite Barb on the hit Netflix show "Stranger Things," is joining the cast of The CW's upcoming Archie reboot for at least three episodes, according to ew.com. She'll play Ethel Muggs, and her character's storyline will reportedly differ from the one in the original comics—she'll be in a romantic relationship with someone other than her comic-book crush Jughead, EW reported. The animated reboot, which will be called "Riverdale," also stars Cole Sprouse and Camila Mendes.

BIEBER'S BEST

Justin Bieber somehow managed to lock down eight records in the Guinness World Records 2017 book, according to eonline.com. Highlights include records for the most streamed track on Spotify in one week for "What Do You Mean?" and most viewed channel on YouTube for an individual.

MORE REBOOT NEWS!

"Doctor Who" and "Guardians of the Galaxy" star Karen Gillan has been added to the cast of Sony's "Jumanji" reboot, according to thr.com. Dwayne Johnson, Kevin Hart, Jack Black and Nick Jonas are also set to appear in what Johnson calls a "continuation" of the 1995 fantasy-adventure film, which starred Robin Williams. Johnson, for his part, seemed pleased by Gillan's casting, writing on Instagram, "This isn't just any role, but in many ways the most important role of the movie. We had to find a girl. But not just any girl. A girl who has 'Chutzpah.'"

THE DIGIT

812,000

That's about how many subscribers quit their cable TV plans in the second quarter of 2016, according to a study by consulting firm SNL Kagan. "It is a bit of an acceleration and the biggest quarterly loss that we've seen," Ian Olgelerson, an analyst with SNL Kagan, told the L.A. Times on Monday. "We are seeing a gradual increase in the decline rate." More affordable online video services like Netflix, Hulu and Amazon are partially behind the decline, the L.A. Times reported.
